3. Correspondence.

Updated rules for the senior debating have been sent out. There are questions already being asked. Any others that can be sent to Miriam for clarification.

Helen Hodges, county trainer for the senior debating noted that she had some questions to Wales. Katie Davies explained that NFYFC's theory was to try and create a more lively competition and stop people being able to prepare their speeches. Helen recommended that the county round should be kept the same for this year with the winning squad undertaking the new rules. She noted that less confident more nervous members often put in to compete to make up a team would not be prepared to do so with the new format and it would therefore see a decline in numbers. Helen gave a detailed explanation of the rules. It was proposed and seconded to follow Helen's recommendation and that the rules would remain as originally sent out for the county round.

Nerys Roberts noted that their club would have difficulty in having enough members to compete in all English public speaking sections and the Call my Bluff competitions. It was proposed the English and Welsh Call my bluff would be held during the Welsh public speaking competition on the 13th March.
